THINGS

Gotta catch 'em snores: Pokemon sleep app to launch next year

The company tries to tap into the wellness market.

Japan's the Pokemon Company said on Wednesday it was developing "Pokemon Sleep," a mobile app that tracks players' sleep and uses the data for gameplay, with a release date set for next year.

"We want to turn sleep into entertainment," said Tsunekazu Ishihara, chief executive of the Pokemon Company, which helps manage the Pokemon franchise, at an event in Tokyo.

At the same event, Kyoto-based Nintendo said it was developing a sleep-tracking successor to its Pokemon Go Plus device, which allows users to "catch" Pokemon without taking out their smartphones.

Augmented-reality smartphone game "Pokemon Go," developed by San Francisco-based Niantic Inc., became a worldwide phenomenon after its launch in 2016 as players spilled out from living rooms onto the streets to hunt for Pokemon.

The Pokemon Company was set up with investment from gaming companies Nintendo, Game Freak and Creatures. Spanning products including video games, movies and soft toys, Pokemon is a home-grown contender for a Disney-style pop culture empire.

The first two Pokemon titles launched on the Nintendo Game Boy handheld console in 1996. Since then, the game series has sold more than 340 million units worldwide.

Pokemon Sleep will use data points like how long the user slept and when they awoke to change gameplay, though the Pokemon Company did not elaborate on how gameplay would change.

The title could help entrench Pokemon's appeal beyond core gamers and tap into a growing market for health-tracking services.

Nintendo has been trying to attract casual fans of Pokemon Go to its hybrid Switch games device with two beginner-friendly "Pokemon Let's Go" titles, which have sold more than 10 million copies as of the end of March.

It will release two fully-fledged Pokemon titles for the device in late 2019.

Pokemon's global appeal is reflected in the success of movie "Pokemon Detective Pikachu," which has taken more than $120 million at box offices in North America. The movie features the yellow Pikachu character — often the face of Pokemon — as a Sherlock Holmes-like crime-buster, complete with deerstalker.

A sequel to the "Detective Pokemon" game for the Nintendo 3DS handheld console will be released for the Switch, the Pokemon Company said.

Pokemon's success comes as Nintendo expands the range of outlets for its popular characters, with Italian plumber Mario to feature at a Nintendo-themed land under construction at Osaka's Universal Studios Japan theme park.

At Wednesday's event in Tokyo, Chinese partner NetEase Inc. — which will launch a local version of mobile game "Pokemon Quest" — also said it aims to bring more Pokemon games to China.

Nintendo is also working with Chinese gaming leader Tencent Holdings Ltd. to launch its Switch device in the country.

Oklahoma, Arkansas face flood of 'historic magnitude'

2 Thousands of Arkansas and Oklahoma residents braced for more flooding on Wednesday and some evacuated their homes, as forecasts of more rain drove fears that decades-old levees girding the Arkansas River may not hold. More than a week of violent weather, including downpours and deadly tornadoes, has devastated the central United States, bringing record-breaking floods in parts of the two states, turning highways into lakes and submerging all but the roofs of some homes. "This is a flood of historic magnitude," Arkansas Gov. Asa Hutchinson told a news conference on Wednesday. More heavy downpours were forecast through Wednesday night over much of the two states, with between 1 and 3 inches expected, Patrick Burke, a meteorologist at the National Weather Service's (NWS) Weather Prediction Center, said in an interview. REUTERS

Google bans apps that facilitate sale of marijuana

3 Alphabet Inc.'s Google on Wednesday banned apps on its app store that facilitate the sale of marijuana or related products, as part of a change to its content policy. Developers only need to move their shopping cart option outside the app to comply with the new policy, a Google spokesperson told Reuters. Google said it is working with many of the developers to answer any technical questions and help them implement the changes without customer disruption. Existing apps would have 30 days post-launch to comply with the policy. "Google's decision is a disappointing development that only helps the illegal market thrive, but we are confident that Google, Apple and Facebook will eventually do the right thing," a spokesperson for Eaze, a marijuana delivery app, said. REUTERS

Severe storms clog evening commute

New Yorkers were on alert for the second night in a row.

MORGAN ROUSSEAU
morgan@metro.us

For the second night in a row, New York City on Wednesday dealt with the threat of isolated tornadoes, severe thunderstorms, downpours, hail and damaging winds.

The NYC office of Emergency Management sent out an afternoon alert warning of the dangerous weather, which was expected to hit the city between 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. — yep, prime commuting time.

But the weather threat posed more harm than a simple delay in getting home. The potential for severe thunderstorms created dangerous travel conditions in the evening, officials said. New Yorkers were urged to avoid open areas and seek shelter indoors if they were outdoors.

The startling forecast was nothing new for residents in New York and New Jersey who dealt with similar threats the previous evening.

In addition to being pelted with golf ball sized hail, Staten Island saw a tornado watch on Tuesday night, but lucked out. Stanhope, N.J. wasn't so lucky — a twister was confirmed to have touched down there on Tuesday, bringing down trees and power lines. No injuries were reported, but a high school suffered damage.

"We sheltered people in place [at the school] until we could establish a safe zone outside," Stanhope Fire Chief Alan Bookspan told CBS2. "Once we established that there was no danger going on outside the building [and] everything was secure, we evacuated everyone car-by-car, family-by-family until the school was basically empty."

A waterspout was also spotted in Fortescue, New Jersey, on Tuesday night.

This week's chaotic weather will likely taper off. Thursday was forecast to see more thunderstorms in the evening, but Friday and Saturday are expected to be mostly sunny.

Teens sought in Brooklyn pepper-spray attack

The assault took place in Brooklyn on May 18.

letters@metro.us

Police are looking for a group of teenagers who allegedly conducted a violent attack in a subway station in Brooklyn.

NYPD officials said that surveillance footage from the Ralph Avenue station in Bedford-Stuyvesant in Brooklyn shows a group of kids attacking a 30-year-old man, spraying him with pepper spray. Cops said the teens dragged the man to the street level, and stole his iPhone and $300 in cash. Authorities said the victim was intoxicated when he was attacked, and does not remember exactly what happened.

According to ABC 7, the victim told police that he only remembers that his face and eyes were burning after the attack.

He was taken to the hospital, but is said to be in stable condition. Police would like to speak to at least seven people in connection with the attack: Three girls and four boys all thought to be between the ages of 13 and 19.

NYPD: Kitchen knife-wielding robber on the loose

NYPD need help identifying a man who allegedly is on a robbery spree.

letters@metro.us

The NYPD is searching for a man who brandished a large vegetable knife during a series of robberies.

Victims told police that the man acted crazed as he knocked over three stores in Brooklyn and Manhattan over a 24-hour span.

Video from inside the Super Star Deli in Brooklyn shows the man leaping over the counter Sunday night, waving a huge knife and shouting threats at the clerk. Authorities say he came away with just $20 after it was all said and done.

"He put the knife and said, 'Give me the money, give me the money, give me the money,'" the store owner told ABC 7. "And after that, I come back and he said, 'I'll kill you,' so then I go and call the police."

On Monday, authorities said the same man went on to hit two pizzerias in Lower Manhattan and the Lower East Side. He allegedly figured out how to grab more loot, making off with more than $500 in those two robberies.

The areas he hit were well-lit and had plenty of cameras, and his face was captured clearly. Police are asking for help finding the suspect. *Anyone with information can contact police by calling the NYPD's Crime Stoppers Hotline at 1-800-577-TIPS (8477). Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

“Don’t Get ANY Surgery Until You See This...”

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It’s Best “Treatment Formula” For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going to be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it’s complex. In other words, it’s not a simple, easy fix.

But I’m sure you already know that. Or you wouldn’t be reading this.

That’s the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It’s amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

While I can’t give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD “Treatment Formula” A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW...

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these “gel injections” without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patient. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here’s What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our “Treatment Formula.”

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what’s going on and what is your best course of action... step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what’s going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I’m out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

Moby cancels book tour after furor over Natalie Portman claims

The musician apologized to the actress earlier this week via Instagram.

GETTY IMAGES

Moby on Wednesday canceled his book tour after mischaracterizing a past relationship with actress Natalie Portman in his new book.

A message on the musician's website said that Moby was canceling "all upcoming public appearances for the foreseeable future." It was posted three days before he was due to start the U.K. leg of a tour to promote his memoir "Then It Fell Apart."

The electronic-dance musician found himself mired in controversy last week after claiming in the book that Portman flirted with him and asked him for a date in 2001, when she was a rising star.

The Oscar-winning "Black Swan" actress told Harper's Bazaar last week that she was surprised to hear him describe it as dating. She called his behavior at the time inappropriate and added, "My recollection is a much older man being creepy with me when I just had graduated high school."

"He said I was 20; I definitely wasn't. I was a teenager. I had just turned 18. That he used this story to sell his book was very disturbing to me," added Portman, now 37.

Moby apologized to Portman, saying in an Instagram post earlier this week: "I accept that given the dynamic of our almost 14-year age difference, I absolutely should've acted more responsibly and respectfully when Natalie and I first met almost 20 years ago."

"I'm going to go away for a while," the singer, 53, added in a posting on Tuesday. "But before I do, I want to apologize again, and to say clearly that all of this has been my own fault."

Representatives for Portman, who is a supporter of the Time's Up movement against sexual harassment, declined further comment on Wednesday. REUTERS

Apple defends App Store amid mounting criticism

Apple on Wednesday publicly defended its App Store from mounting criticism over its treatment of rivals in a new blog post detailing its functions and guidelines.

Companies like music streaming leader Spotify Technology SA have criticized the iPhone maker's practices, describing it as anti-competitive behavior in a complaint to the European Union's anti-trust regulators.

Central to Spotify's complaint is a 30 percent fee Apple charges content-based service providers to use Apple's in-app purchase system (IAP).

In a section called "Principles and Practices," Apple defended its practices, saying developers decide what they want to charge from a set of price tiers.

"We only collect a commission from developers when a digital good or service is delivered through an app."

er through an app.

"We also care about quality over quantity, and trust over transactions. That's why, even though other stores have more users and more app downloads, the App Store earns more money for developers. Our users trust Apple — and that trust is critical to how we operate a fair, competitive store for developer app distribution," it added.

The post, which comes ahead of Apple's annual developer conference in Silicon Valley next week, also welcomed competition.

"We believe competition makes everything better and results in the best apps for our customers," Apple said.

Earlier this month, the U.S. Supreme Court also gave a go-ahead to an antitrust lawsuit accusing Apple of forcing consumers to overpay for iPhone software applications, again related to its 30 percent commission on purchases.

The Cupertino, California-based technology company also said it provided a fair marketplace for 20 million developers in its Apple Developer Program.

Apple has been able to avoid much of the antitrust scrutiny faced by other technology firms, largely by arguing that it does not have a dominant position in the many markets in which it operates, from smartphones and laptops to streaming music services.

Robert Mueller says charging Trump was 'not an option'

The president declared the matter "case closed."

U.S. Special Counsel Robert Mueller said on Wednesday his investigation into Russia's interference in the 2016 election was never going to end with criminal charges against President Donald Trump and indicated it was up to Congress to decide if impeachment proceedings are justified.

In his first public comments since starting the investigation in May 2017, Mueller said Justice Department policy prevented him from bringing charges against a sitting president, telling reporters it was "not an option we would consider."

But he also said his two-year investigation did not clear Trump of improper behavior and pointed out there were other ways to hold presidents accountable.

"The Constitution requires a process other than the criminal justice system to formally accuse a sitting president of wrongdoing," Mueller said as he announced his resignation from the Justice Department.

Democrats in Congress are debating whether to try to move ahead with impeachment, an effort that is almost certain to fall short in the Republican-controlled Senate.

The White House and several top Republicans said it was time to move on to other matters, while several Democratic presidential candidates called for impeachment.

"What Robert Mueller basically did was return an impeachment referral," Sen. Kamala Harris said on Twitter.

"The Constitution requires a process other than the criminal justice system to formally accuse a sitting president of wrongdoing."

Robert Mueller

"Given that Special Counsel Mueller was unable to pursue criminal charges against the President, it falls to Congress to respond to the crimes, lies and other wrongdoing of President Trump — and we will do so," said Jerrold Nadler, the Democratic chairman of the House of Representatives Judiciary Committee.

A redacted version of Mueller's report was published in April, concluding that Russia repeatedly interfered in the 2016 election and that Trump's election campaign had multiple contacts with Russian officials, but did not establish a criminal conspiracy with Moscow to win the White House.

TRUMP DECLARES "CASE CLOSED"

Trump, who has repeatedly denounced Mueller's investigation as a "witch hunt" and "hoax" meant to hobble his presidency, said the matter was settled.

"Nothing changes from the Mueller Report," he said on Twitter. "There was insufficient evidence and therefore, in our Country, a person is innocent. The case is closed! Thank you."

Mueller, who headed the FBI from 2001 to 2013, said he would not elaborate beyond what was contained in his 448-page report, signaling to Democrats that he was unlikely to provide them more ammunition for impeachment if he were to testify on Capitol Hill.

"Beyond what I've said here today and what is contained in our written work, I do not believe it is appropriate for me to speak further," he said.

He did not take questions after making his statement. REUTERS

THE FOREMAN FORECAST: TRUMP'S IMPEACHMENT DREAMS

FOREMAN

In the inside-out, upside-down world that is Washington, D.C. these days, here is a startling idea: No one wants to see the impeachment process of Donald Trump get underway this summer more than Donald Trump. A source inside the White House has recently confirmed as much to CNN, suggesting the president is fairly panting for the impeachment hounds to grab that pork chop and run with it.

But why?

Impeachment is a serious matter which is rarely undertaken. In a presidential sense, it is Congress raising an official accusation of wrongdoing, law-breaking, treason or other misconduct. When any president is impeached by the House of Representatives, the stain will stay on his record for eternity, even if he holds on to his office. Which is a fancy way of saying impeachment is definitely a bad thing.

Unless you are Trump.

Remember, Trump's entire campaign — his rollicking, raging, road show of rallies which have never stopped — is predicated on the idea of enemies. His supporters are whipped into frenzies over his fantastic tales of greedy Democrats trying to take their health care, sneaky immigrants lurking to take their jobs, and a murky "Deep State" of conspiratorial bureaucrats out to thwart the will of the voters. At every stop, he stokes his fans' fears of economic and political disenfranchisement, while insisting he is the only person strong enough, determined enough and wily enough to save them from social annihilation.

So even as the Democratic drumbeat for impeachment grows louder, Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi is urging a go-slow approach. Because she knows her party's jubilation over winning that vote would be short-lived if it helps Trump win the much more substantial vote next fall.

Knee Arthritis Pain?

10 Year Medical Study Reveals Knee Replacement Avoided With Newest Medical Treatment In 3 of 4 Cases

If you suffer with painful knee arthritis — science may have finally found the answer you've been looking for.

Here's why: What should be looked at as a landmark and startling study by the medical world, research published by a noted Orthopedic Surgeon in the Journal Of Knee Surgery revealed that 75% of those with Grade IV (often called "bone on bone") knee arthritis were able to avoid the surgery more than 7 years and beyond.

When doctors accurately placed FDA approved lubricating medicines using advanced imaging into almost 2000 arthritic knees (like putting oil on a rusty door hinge or automobile engine) the majority of patients actually responded well enough to avoid major and complex knee replacement surgery. But, the procedure needs to be done by experienced doctors using the best technology for optimum technique and results.

Know this: This is an FDA-cleared REAL medical treatment that must be given by a skilled professional.

These special treatments are now available right here in NYC for Tri-State area arthritis sufferers. And many insurances, even Medicare, cover these treatments for qualified patients.

More Good News: NYC Pain MD, the NYC area's "go to" medical group for non-surgical arthritis pain management is now offering these simple, in-office treatment programs and offers a No-Cost, No-Obligation screening appointment to find out if you qualify. To speak with a scheduling coordinator about a screening appointment, just call 877-228-5490.

Sophie Turner and Jessica Chastain: 'There is certainly room for more exploration'

PROVIDED

The 12th installment in the "X-Men" film series and a direct sequel to "X-Men: Apocalypse" dubbed "Dark Phoenix" is set to hit screens on June 7. The superhero movie based on Marvel Comics characters shows how skills of powerful Jean Gray (Sophie Turner) got out of control.

CRISTINA URRUTIA, MWN

With the accident that Jean suffers in the movie, not only do we see her more powerful physically, she has more confidence and is empowered. Could you tell more about this transformation?

Sophie Turner (ST): I think it's interesting. Once Jean gets hit by the sun, a lot of things change. Not only does the power she has increase... When she lets that power to release, she becomes incredibly strong and incredibly focused, she feels very empowered by it. But that power manifests itself in very destructive ways and she rejects it several times. That is the problem she is dealing with.

What was it like to have Jessica [Chastain] as a mentor? Not only in the movie, but in real life as an actress.

ST: Oh, God! It was incredible. In the film she is the mentor and in real life I see her as a mentor too. Just observing her on the set – not only acting – but the way she works with the crew, with the cast, how she fights for her character... That is something really inspiring. I learned a lot from her by just watching her interacting and acting, it was really amazing.

Would you be satisfied if Dark Phoenix was the last film of the X-Men universe?

ST: This movie is a combination of all the previous films. I think it would make a good closer. But there is certainly room for more exploration.

Jessica Chastain (JC): I agree. This is my only X-Men movie. It can tell you that it's amazing how emotional it is. It feels like the end of a chapter, but that does not necessarily mean it's the end of a book.

Jessica, we still do not know if your character is good or bad. But we know that Smith helps Jean to accept her power. Tell more about that relationship.

JC: I can not say that my character has the purest motives when it comes to inspiring Jean. She has a very impressive power that my character wants to help her use. Although she also does incredible things, she encourages her to listen to herself and not to follow the rules, in order to help her understand that she does not always have to be a good little girl. In fact it is a time to create your own rules. I think it's something that all women should listen to.

Sophie, Jean is one of the most powerful characters in the entire Marvel universe. How does it feel to play her?

ST: It's very empowering to be a strong character. It's wonderful because she's so powerful but, at the same time, she has to deal with those powers, and that's an important message to convey. I believe that power comes with many decisions that have to be made, including moral ones. And the internal struggle becomes more difficult when you have more power.

Jessica, Simon Kinberg previously said that your character is based on others from the comics. Tell more about it.

JC: I can not, Simon would get angry. I can only tell you that she is a character from another world and is not from the comics. Yes, it is influenced by comics, but there is no reference I could make.

Metro talks to an expert about why the peak is overcrowded, and why the number of fatalities on the mountain is so high.
MIGUEL VELAZQUEZ MWN

A total of 11 people have lost their lives so far this year, while climbing Everest, including nine on Nepalese side and two on Tibetan one.

According to reports, several fatalities occurred because of a bottleneck formed on the mountain with many queuing in the "death zone" seeking to reach the summit.

To learn more, Metro talked with Adrian Ballinger, founder of Alpenglow Expeditions and world class mountaineer.

Did the number of people who visit Mount Everest increase in recent years?

In terms of the number of people who are climbing Everest, it has been slowly increasing. The year's increase in popularity did not come all of a sudden. It's been slow, raising few percentage points every few years.

There have been 11 deaths on Mount Everest during the climbing season of 2019, higher than in previous years. Recent deaths this year, probably, had mostly to do with a very condensed weather window to go to the summit. So, most years there's somewhere between 8 and 12 days during which you can reach it. This year, there were probably only 3 or 4 good or even marginal days. And that led to some of the crowds of people being pushed into these days.

That was also com-

bined with increased number of inexperienced climbers and inexperienced low budget operators.

It was also surprising to see long lines to ascend the summit of Everest. The long lines really had to do with that condensed weather window, where people were pushed to climb in just a couple of days instead of spreading them out.

But, with that said, poor decisions had a lot to do with it as well. When people see lines like that or the number of people leaving high camp it should have been immediately obvious that that was not the day to go.

For instance, my teams were positioned to climb on May 23 on the north side of the mountain when we saw there quite a few other teams, as there was a highly publicised good weather forecast (with low winds).

We decided to hold at the highest camp for the night, using additional oxygen. Everyone waited a full 24 hours, and then we went up on May 24. Instead of hundreds on the route there were less than 40 climbers, including my team of 23. And we just had a perfect day.

What are the safety recommendations for those who wish to climb Everest?

The most important thing is to gain experience on other mountains first. My company Alpenglow Expeditions requires each person to have climbed at least five 6000 meter peaks. One 7000 meter peak, one 8000 meter peak, one more, and then it is possible to climb Everest. By the time you've done all those other peaks you'd experience storms, other climbers on the grid, having to fail and descend... You learn to make those hard decisions for yourself as well as becoming a better, more efficient climber.

So, commercial operators are the biggest problem?

I truly don't believe Everest is overcrowded right now. There are many other mountains in the world. The level of inexperience of the commercial operators is the biggest problem right now. We need regulation that stops allowing any company to set up appalling guides to bring people on Mount Everest. We need to require certifications.

I hope this year doesn't take away from people's dreams climbing Mount Everest. It is an incredible experience and ultimate challenge with the unknown outcome. I don't think the risk should ever go fully away.

New hope for SI Ferris wheel

Staten Island's New York Wheel may get its turn after all.

The fabled and forsaken New York Wheel, Staten Island's ill-fated answer to the Eiffel Tower, may be getting yet another chance. Last October it was announced that the 630-foot would-be world's tallest Ferris wheel, anchoring the borough's North Shore, was a no-go, mired in years of court battles and pay disputes. Now, NY1 reports, plans for a scaled-down version of the wheel may be back on the table. The city's Economic Development Corporation (EDC), who set the original wheel idea in motion, is meeting with a new developer about the possibility of a smaller wheel.

Construction on the privately-funded project that had been in the works for over half a decade was halted in May of 2017, with $450 million already invested and an expected cost of nearly $1 billion. The Wheel was originally scheduled to open in October of 2016. Though the project, part of a part of a $1.2 billion redevelopment of Staten Island's North Shore, was being built on city-owned land, it was completely funded by private investors.

Senior vice president of public affairs for the EDC had called the NY Wheel, which was intended to bring tourists and visitors to the borough "an ambitious venture," but that the city "is committed to working with the community and local stakeholders to determine potential uses for the Wheel site."

NY1 now reports that the EDC held at least two meetings in recent months to explore bringing the project back to life with a new developer, using the foundation already in place at the site. Last month Mayor Bill De Blasio acknowledged that "EDC has been talking to elected officials and community leaders about what they'd like to see. I don't know if they've put out any formal requests for proposals yet, but that will certainly be coming soon."

Among the reasons to resurrect the project: CanAm Enterprises, represented by have said they may obtain additional funding by bringing on a large company as a partner. Building a similar structure on a site that was already created would mean there would be no lengthy approval process required.

The project's principals continue to lose money on the undeveloped site since it has not yet terminated its lease—an agreed-upon $1 million annually, plus interest, deferred until November of 2021—on the city's land, and the project is still on the hook for the cost of restoring the site. The NY Wheel is accountable for the deferred rent, with payments that already amount to more than $2.3 million.

ing the 412 foreign investors that had raised $206 million for the construction of the Wheel in exchange for green cards as part of an federal program, still hopes to recoup their investment. According to SI Live, those investors

2019 NBA Finals Preview:

The Warriors are looking for a fourth title in five years while the Raptors go for their first-ever crown.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

You won't find much more of a gap in class when it comes to opponents facing off in a championship series than you'll see in the 2019 NBA Finals.

The Golden State Warriors are on the cusp of putting an exclamation point on the NBA's latest dynasty. Appearing in their fifth-straight NBA Finals, the Warriors have won three of the last four championships and could make it a three-peat this year.

Standing in their way of further immortality is the Toronto Raptors — a scrappy side that is the first Eastern Conference champion to not feature LeBron James since 2010.

The Raptors are in their first-ever NBA Finals after prevailing through some dire situations.

This was a team that was on the verge of trailing the Philadelphia 76ers 3-1 in the second round and one possession away from losing Game 7. Then, they overturned a 2-0 deficit in the conference finals against the Milwaukee Bucks

Steph Curry and the Warriors meet Kawhi Leonard and the Raptors tonight for Game 1 of the NBA Finals. GETTY IMAGES when they were dangerously close of dropping Game 3 in Toronto.

While their ability to rise in the face of adversity has been commendable, they are going to face a completely different animal in the Warriors.

Even with Kevin Durant's status up in the air, Golden State's offense is one of the best the NBA has ever seen. And it will surely provide the stiffest test for a Raptors defense that has shut down the likes of Joel Embiid and Giannis Antetokounmpo this postseason.

Stephen Curry continues to remind us that he still is one of the game's very best, though his name has been lost at times over the past two seasons since the arrival of Durant — not to mention the ever-improving likes of Russell Westbrook and James Harden elsewhere out West.

Oh, and don't forget the every-day circus that has become LeBron in LA.

Curry's importance to the Warriors has continued to increase this postseason as his usage rate has expanded from 24.4 percent in the first round to 27.4 percent in the second to 32.1 percent with Durant in the conference finals, per NBA.com.

He's averaging 27.3 points per game this postseason while shooting 45.2-percent from the field.

While he's continued to star, Draymond Green has hit new levels in the playoffs. After averaging just 7.4 points and 7.3 rebounds per game during the regular season, Green is posting 13.6 points and 9.9 rebounds per playoff contest.

Add in Klay Thompson's 19.1 points per game this postseason despite shooting a mediocre 39.1-percent (by his standards) from three-point range, and it's easy to see why the Warriors are such favorites to win it all once again.

It will take a monumental, mythical effort from Raptors star Kawhi Leonard to overthrow the Warriors' tyranny.

He's already put together an all-time performance as he leads all players in total minutes played (696), points scored (561), free throws made (133), and steals (28).

It will take more than one man to topple Golden State, however, which means the Raptors are going to need top performances from Pascal Siakam, Marc Gasol, and the emerging Fred VanVleet.

Continue to P. 23 to see how the two teams stack up heading into Game 1 tonight.
